

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am incredibly thankful to have been given the opportunity to devote the past few years of my life to a subject I love above all others.

My heartfelt gratitude goes to everyone at the University of Essex who has helped make this possible, and in particular my supervisor, Prof. Peter Vergo, whose faith in my abilities and constant enthusiasm for my research has been of fundamental importance. I am extremely grateful to those staff members (both past and present) at the School of Philosophy and Art History – and the former Department of Art History and Theory – who have offered comments on my work, encouraged me in my studies, and given me practical help and advice. In these respects I particularly wish to thank Dr Natasha Ruiz-Gómez, Prof. Neil Cox and Libby Armstrong.

I am indebted to the AHRC for its generous funding of my research; without its financial assistance I would not have been able to contemplate undertaking this course of study.

For the interest they have shown in my work along the way, and for giving me the opportunity to present my ideas to as wide an audience as possible, my sincere thanks go to Prof. Ernest Ialongo, Prof. Walter L. Adamson, Dr Giuliana Pieri, Dr Simona Storch, Dr Justine Grace and Dr Foteini Vlachou.

I am indebted to all at the Archivio del'900, Museo di Arte Moderna e Contemporanea di Trento e Rovereto, but particularly to Federico Zanoner and Mariarosa Mariech. My gratitude also goes to Luca Gabrielli (formerly of the Museo dell'Aeronautica Gianni Caproni), Ginevra Bria and Atto

Belloli Ardessi (ISISUF), Matteo Fochessati (Wolfsoniana) and Agnese Sferrazza (Galleria Russo).

The encouragement of Umberto Tulli – whose uncle’s work was decisive in inspiring me to undertake this project in the first place – has been particularly important for me, as has been the assistance of my friend Valeria Carullo in helping me to decipher some of the more idiosyncratic and complex passages in Marinetti’s writings.

Special thanks are due to Dr Amy Morris – whose help in tracking down archival material in the Getty Research Institute has been invaluable – and to Isobel Estorick.

I am extremely grateful to Roberta Cremoncini for enabling me to continue working on a flexible basis at the Estorick Collection of Modern Italian Art while writing this thesis. Over the years I have come to value our friendship and working relationship more than I can say, and I will always think of the Estorick Collection as a second home.

It goes without saying that the support of my parents has been vital to me.

Caroline, Fenner and Sullivan – your constant love, and our wonderful life together, means everything. After all these years, I finally have what I’ve always needed. XXX
